History Tales Schedule Promises a Series of Fascinating Speakers

This year's schedule for History Tales offers a wealth of information about Clallam County.

Dorothy Drain, coordinator for Peninsula College speakers, has prepared a diverse and interesting slate for CCHS. We thank her for sharing her expertise with us.

All programs are on the first Sunday of the month with two exceptions: December and April. There is no presentation in December and to avoid a conflict with Easter, History Tales will be held on April 11.

All programs are at Port Angeles City Hall, 321 East Fifth Street at 2:30 p.m.

Garage Sale Totals $28,305!!!

A new record was set when the final total was reached for this year's biggest fundraiser. After a successful Members Only night and two weekends of selling to the public, the grand total was $28,305.

It is difficult for someone who has never worked on the sale to realize the time and effort volunteers spend putting this remarkable event together.

It all starts with an announcement that "Donations are now being accepted" to our members. That's when your generosity starts the entire Garage Sale process. Next the volunteers step in to sort and at times clean and repair donations. Each article is then taken to the location in the school where it will be sold. Displaying the items on shelving and tables, and pricing each one, is the last of the jobs to be done. The sale is ready to open — first to our members and then the public.

"Members Only night was a huge success," said Kathy Monds, executive director. "Our members had the first opportunity to shop at the sale. They made this fundraiser a success in more ways than one." she said.

A Word from Kathy

Each year as we plan the garage sale, we hope to reach a certain monetary goal. This year's goal was $25,000. What a wonderful surprise when the total was $28,305! This is the most successful sale to date—and a huge tribute to all those who donate items, those who spend hundreds of hours sorting, cleaning, and pricing and those who come to shop. The comment heard most at the check out line was how well organized everything is. Yes, the check out line can get long at times; price tags are gone—or there is more than one price on an item!—but what you see most often are smiles on the faces of the volunteers and shoppers. And I will never cease to marvel at our cashiers and baggers!! They stay calm, cool and collected and always share a smile with the customers.

My sincere thanks to volunteers, board members, and shoppers who supported the Clallam County Historical Society from Members' Only Night through Buck-a-bag day.

And many more thanks to everyone who worked before and after the sale—it is a huge task, but you all perform your duties with smiles and laughter. You are a major reason why I love my job so much—

Now that the sale is over, we look forward to another season of History Tales of Clallam County. The schedule is printed in this issue. And we are pleased to offer a six-week history class—a project we hope will be ongoing.

As always, thank you for your support!

Can you help us identify where this photo was taken?

This query first came in on our web site from a resident who purchased the photo from a local antique shop.

She would like to know where the picture was taken.

Any information you can share with us will be appreciated. Please call Kathy at 360-452-2662.

Garage Sale—2009

What goes on before the sale. . .

The kitchen area is organized by Nancy Hilt (left). Kneeling is Ann Sibole. When the sale opens, everything will sparkle and be in place. This scene is typical of every department and section getting ready for the sale.

Merlyn Miller is surrounded by appliances and lamps that need an "OK" before they are accepted and readied for sale. This small area is a busy site during the months prior to the Garage Sale.

Gwen Porterfield (left), and Kay Seed arrange and price thousands of books (yes, they price every one). This section is a real favorite with our repeat customers.

It's time to open the doors for the Members Only event. . .

Members and people wanting to join the Society started gathering early. This year 14 new members joined at the Members Only function.

It's been a long-standing tradition for Exec. Director Kathy Monds (left) to "dress for the occasion" in clothing donated for the sale. This year's style was sparkle and glitz. The fancy dress didn't keep her from signing up new members.

Virginia Fitzpatrick (left), organizes and works in the collectibles section. While the items in this area aren't typical garage sale merchandise, they are bargains and priced accordingly.

Members leave the sale with lots of purchases. . .
Volunteers will greet the public in the morning

Multi-talented Pat Gallup will be greatly missed

Residents of Clallam County have enjoyed Pat Gallup's work in Historical Society exhibits since the early 1990s. In creating these exhibits she has called on skills developed throughout the years you wouldn't think needed for setting up an exhibit. She has recovered furniture, pounded more than a few nails, and made the curtains now hanging in the lower gallery at The Museum at the Carnegie. And that just touches on a few of her talents.

Gallup recently announced her intent to retire. It goes without saying how much she will be missed.

She has been involved in the arts since the mid-1940s. Her employers include Walt Disney, the Illustration Branch at China Lake that included exhibits to commemorate the history of the naval facility and the visit of President Kennedy in 1963.

Pat moved to the Olympic Peninsula in 1977. She has been creatively involved with the Sequim Museum. She attended Evergreen College and completed a B.A. in Liberal Arts in 1981.

She also has worked with the Cultural Arts Center in Sequim, edited the Peninsula Arts Review and the Dungeness River Audubon Society's River Current newsletter.

Gallup began volunteering at the Historical Society in the early 1990s.

Gallup's office at the Historical Society reflects artwork created for specific exhibits. The school children who decorate her walls were exhibited at the Wasankari Cabin during one of the Clallam County fairs.

In 2008 Gallup was honored with the Washington Museum Association's Individual Award of Excellence for her contributions to the museum world and her impressive body of work.

The Society and county have benefited greatly from Gallup's many talents, as have the visitors to the exhibits she has created throughout the years.

NOTE: the Summer 2008 issue of Museum News, featured Pat Gallup and her many achievements in detail. This issue is archived on our web site, www.clallamhistoricalsociety.com.

Classes being held in Museum at the Carnegie

Forever Learning is the name chosen for the series of six classes now being held at the Museum at the Carnegie.

The series, organized by Irene Wyman, CCHS board member, has been very successful. The 20 seats filled quickly and it is expected that the classes will be ongoing. Tuition is $40 for members, $50 for nonmembers and includes a copy of the book, "A History of Clallam County."

The classes are held every Wednesday from Oct. 14 through Nov. 18, and cover a wide variety of county historical topics.

The presenters and their subjects include Dona Cloud, Time and Time Again; Elaine Grinnell, Jamestown S'Klallam Culture; Alice Alexander, Early Upper Elwha Settlers; Steve Hauff, Spruce Division Railroad; Irene Wyman, Clallam County Schools, East to West; and the CCHS staff, Preserving your Family Treasures.

President's News & Views

John Norton, president of the Historical Society is at home recovering from surgery. Watch for his message in the Winter issue of Museum News.

Heritage Advisory Board Assists in County Preservation Projects

by Alice Alexander

The Clallam County Heritage Advisory Board first came into existence in 1977. Mike Doherty, a county commissioner, and Russ Dalton, a local historian, recognized that there was a need for a board to advise the county commissioners on proper preservation of the cultural heritage of the county. So the first Heritage Advisory Board was formed by resolution 72. The board was charged with restoration and maintenance of the old Clallam County Courthouse, development of a county museum in the old courthouse, and development of a program to promote public interest in history.

It was resolved that there would be seven members from the community, all interested in local history. The first four members were Henry Brown, Dona Cloud, Russ Dalton and Graham Ralston.

In 1979, the commissioners expanded the board to nine members, after the county parks department hired Pat Neal, a historical planner who collected historical data to share with the advisory board and now writes a column for the Peninsula Daily News, and the commissioners. Many Port Angeles citizens have served on the Advisory Board, including Molly Lingvall, Sandy Keys, Robert Baldwin and June Robinson.

June Robinson came on the board in 1991 and served until her death in 2009. She was the chairperson for most of the time she served, and in August, 2009, the county commissioners recognized her long service by awarding her with emeritus status.

The Heritage Advisory Board has worked on a variety of projects since its beginnings. Their first project was assisting the Clallam County Historical Society in setting up a museum on the second floor of the old courthouse. Another large project was locating and recording all of the individual burial plots in the county. That project was intended to identify and register burial sites and county cemeteries, and present written findings to the County Planning Department as a tool for future development. This augments the Clallam County Genealogical Society's 1986 Centennial Project of locating and recording county cemeteries.

For the last four years, the board has also been working on locating homes that were built before November 1889, to establish them as territorial homes. Pictures and a description of these homes will be presented to the commissioners as an additional planning tool for future development.

For the past two years, the board has gone on a variety of field trips, including local museums and special events through out the county. The board has written letters acknowledging restorations of buildings, and written letters supporting certain historical events. They have also advised local entities concerning county historical matters when appropriate.

At present the group remains an active, vibrant group whose full slate includes: DJ Bassett, Laura Maroney, and Karla Forsbeck of Sequim; John Hubbard, Joan Quigley, LeAnna Tanner and Alice Alexander of Port Angeles; Paul Parker of Neah Bay; and Larry Burtness of Forks. Tammy Sullenger, the administrative assistant for the commissioners, is also a strong supporter of the group.

Thank you Volunteers

“Volunteers don’t get paid, not because they’re worth less,
but because they’re priceless.”

—Sherry Anderson

Our Garage Sale was a huge success. Without the willingness of the people listed, who work hard to make it so, it would not have happened.

We also acknowledge the board of directors who provided the food and drink for the Members Only function.

To all of you who worked on the sale — thank you for your priceless donations of time, effort and support.
